11 CP Renefit of Life Insurance.—Mr. J. H. P. merchant, No. 70 Pine-st. 35 years of age, took out a policy upon ais life with the Manual Benefit Life Insurance Company, No. 11 Wall-st, for Solicy, on the 26th of September last, which policy was pavable to his wife for her benefit and that of her children. He died of remittant fever after a short illness and in less than three months after making the insurance. The Company offer to psythe money on receiving the necessary certificate of burial without wnitting for the expiration of the time specified in the policy. By this means the wife and children are provided for—but for this they would be entirely depend in upon friends. We learn this is the first loss this company has met with. Who is justified in being without a policy on his life, who has others depend in upon him?

The division of the profits is annual. This Institution offers many important advantages, both with respect to Life Insurance, and in its system of Annuities, immediate and effected by persons on their own lives or the lives of others, for the whole term of life or for immediate and effected by persons on their own lives or the lives of others, for the whole term of life or for immed periods, and the Society being formed on the Mutual and Joint Stock principle, parties are enabled, as above shown, to participate in the profits of the Society, while their policies are guaranteed not only by the constant occumulation of premiums, but by a capital of two and a laif millions of dollars.

The premiums may be paid yearly, half yearly, or quarterly; and parties insuring for the whele term of life are allowed to borrow two thirds of all premiums paid after the first year. (See table)

[37] Insurance is effected and losses settled under the direction of the Local Board of Directors at New-York, to whom also suthority is delegated for investing the Society's funds in this country.

7. Pompeti, near Naples, as it is at present. This City, destroyed by an eruption of Mount Vesuvina, in the seventy-inity year of our era, is at present considered as the wonder of Itsly. It may be said that the destiny of centuries had conserved that city as a model of the spirit, the customs, the religion and the government of the Ancients. Our mind is stricken at the view of those houses, those temples and the forum seen there. The whole announces the traces of that mighty genius, by whose commands the walls of Pastum, the towers of Capua, and the delicious retreats of the Sybaris were erected.
